

Paperless Student Evaluation of Faculty Pilot

Overview

- Context of paperless SEF project
- Rationale for transition to paperless course evaluations
- Paperless in-class evaluation process
- Paperless course evaluation pilot program
- Pilot program analysis and findings
- Pilot program faculty survey and findings
- Conclusions

Transition Context

- Spring 2014:

- SEF Committee
- Peer institution research
- Current technology capability
- Faculty Survey
- Proposal implementation plan

- Summer – Fall 2014:

- Vendor contact
- Scantron consultations
- Pilot program establishment

Rationale for Transition

Time	780 hours/year
Expense	$44,000/year ($1.50/page)
Waste	$13,000 - $14,000/year

Paperless Course Evaluation Survey

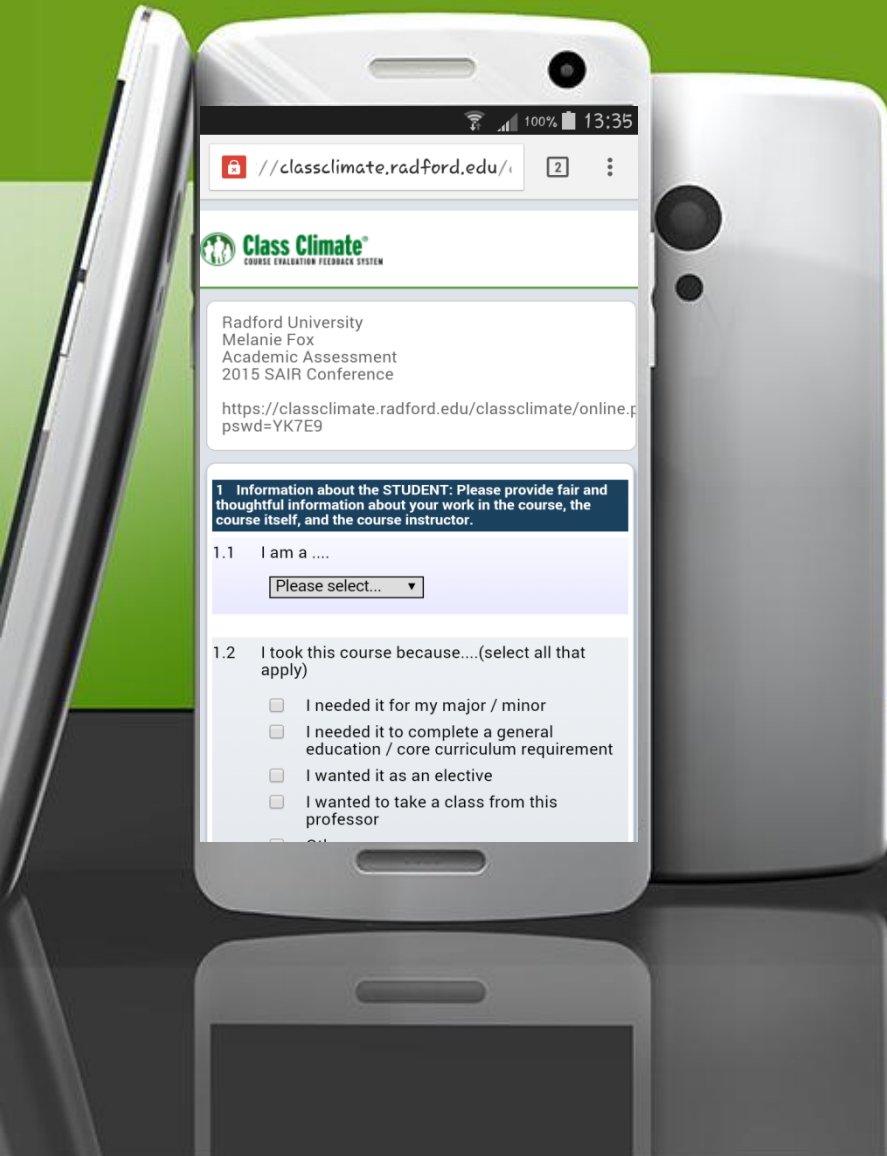

- Survey of faculty: Spring 2014
- 217 responses
- Greatest concerns:
 - Reduced response rates
 - Quality control/uncontrolled environment

Paperless Course Evaluation Overview

- Still conducted in class
- Instructors select day & time
- Instructors / proctors control access
- Students bring devices to class & complete
- Random, unique one-time-use codes/passwords
- Anonymous responses not tied to students
- Instant data gathering
- Secure server
- Immediate report generation
- Out-of-class survey option

Pilot Response Rate Comparison Results

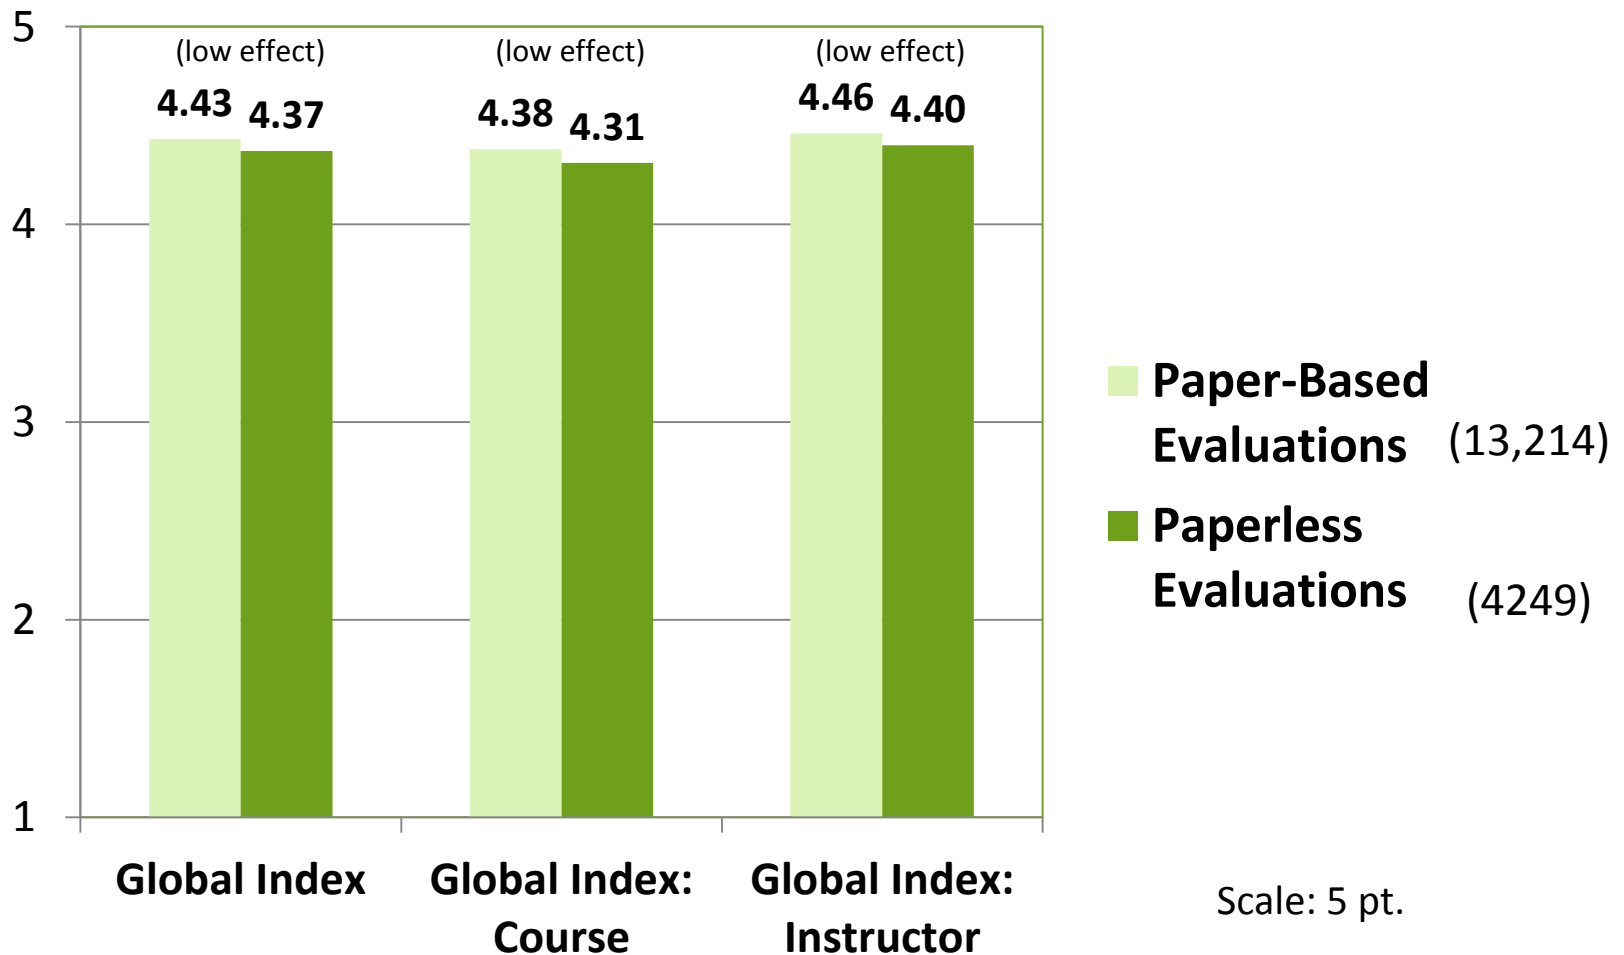

Paperless in-class evaluations yielded higher response rates than paper-based evaluations:

	Spring 2015 & Fall 2015 (paper)	Pilot Spring 2015 & Fall 2015 (paperless/QR codes)
Evaluations Generated	63797	8184
Evaluations Completed	44410	5986
Response Rates	69.6%	73.1%

Conclusions

Benefits

- Significant cost and time savings
- Environmentally friendly
- Ease of use/increased efficiency
- Addresses key faculty concerns
- Yields comparable results
- Faster reporting time
- Familiarity: Replicates existing process
- Increased student anonymity
- Administration, faculty, & students support
